

1. You live in a place that really does have a winter season.

Yes. And I need a coat to keep me warm.

This is called a fashion opportunity!

Maintain a coat wardrobe of flattering colors.

Work with your body type.

Go on trend.

Check shoulder for purse straps.

Don't forget the scarf, hat, and gloves!

cold

very cold

Siberia—or not.

No.

I'm just curious about how the rest of the world suffers.

Stop grinning.

2. You live in a place which regularly gets snow.

Yes. And I don't want to have cold toes!

Another fabulous fashion opportunity!

(Avoid ice!)

No. Usually it's just rainy or icy.

Mostly rain?

Yes. Poor me.

Yeah, poor you. But at least there are Wellies!

No. Not too much precipitation, but still cold.

Go for the boots anyway!

3. You have to wear business attire while working.

Yes. And I can't crawl into a blanket while in the office.

Not indoor

Layer for climate control.

Silk thermals for warmth.

Opaque hosiery.

No. But I'd still like to look my best.

Nothing is quite as cozy as a chunky sweater (just not too chunky).

Coordinate trousers and footwear

Just say no without coverage.

4. You have some place very special to go.

Yes. And I want to look fabulous!

Day time events call for smart, colorful ensembles.

Evening events are dressier; Black tie usually means LBD or a long gown.

This is a great time for open-toe sandals or statement pumps.

Don't forget the appropriate wrap or stole and dress bag.

No. I'm just going to snuggle up on the couch at home.

Why not choose a beautiful robe?

With slippers to match!
